Students incur no military obligation in taking these courses. However, if they do decide to enter the military upon graduation from high school, they may enter at a higher rate (E-2 or E-3) depending on the number of courses satisfactorily completed.

Students who go on to college are eligible for appointments to the United States Naval Academy, or ROTC scholarships offered at various universities. Last year, cadets from New Bern and Havelock High Schools received appointments to the United States Naval Academy, the United States Coast Guard Academy, ROTC and Chancellor's Scholarships.

This program serves as an outstanding example of the positive direction being taken today in our public school systems in North Carolina.

GOVERNOR JAMES B. HUNT, JR.
STATE-OF-THE-STATE ADDRESS
February 9, 1995

"Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Mr. President Pro Tem, Members of the Council of State, Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges of the Court of Appeals, Members of the Cabinet, Members of the North Carolina General Assembly.

"I want to begin by introducing some people who are sitting in the galleries with the First Lady—you can hear some of them.

"You won't recognize their names. They aren't famous. They haven't been in the news.

"But they are the most important people here today.

"They are citizens of North Carolina. They are the taxpayers. They are the reason we are here.

"First is Pamela Cross and her boys, Jacob and Steve from Charlotte. Pamela works for an insurance company in Charlotte.

"Next are Brent and Sheila Gerald from Greensboro. He's a firefighter, and she's at home with their daughter, Alexandria, in the red dress.

"Then there are George and Evelyn Schnupp, who retired to New Bern after running a marina and boat yard in New York.

"And then there is the Williams family—Franklin and Jo Ann, with their daughters Laura Jane and Mary Elizabeth. Franklin is a farmer in Duplin County, and Jo Ann works as a home economics extension agent.

"Then there's a wonderful North Carolinian. Jessie Copeland is a 71-year-old great-grandmother here in Raleigh who's working to make Chavis Heights a place where children can be safe.

"And then there are the Bartolos. Staff Sgt. Bartolo is stationed at Fort Bragg, and his wife Petra, who used to be in the military, is working toward her college degree and caring for their sons, Anthony and Nicholas.

"Let's welcome these families to their State capital.

"I introduce these people to make a point.

"For the last three months, election day has been the issue for most of us in this Chamber. We care a lot about what happened and why and what it means and what this Session is going to be like.

"But these people care a lot more about their families and their future than they do about our politics. They care about their jobs, the safety of their families and the education of their children.

"And that's, folks, what we should care about this year.

"Our job is to put these people first—and our politics last.

"Our job is to move beyond campaign rhetoric and partisan turf-fighting.

"Our job is to find common ground here where we can discuss important issues on their merit, where we listen to each other and learn from each other.

"You and I may never get another chance like this one to build a better future for North Carolina.

"Let's make up our minds today that we're going to do what's right for these people and all the people of North Carolina. (applause)

"Now, we're building a better future in North Carolina today because of what the General Assembly did in the last two years, Democrats and Republicans together:

- tough laws against crime and smart programs to prevent crime,
- an aggressive economic development strategy,
- smaller classes, better teaching and higher standards in the public schools and better early childhood education,
- a bond issue that is building new libraries and classrooms and labs and other facilities at our universities and community colleges.

"And, folks, all of that was done without raising taxes. (applause)

"Democrats and Republicans built that foundation.

"This year let's work together to build a better future.

"Let's make this a productive Session. Let's concentrate on doing three things:

"First, cut taxes.

"Second, fight crime.

"Third—and most important—help the children of North Carolina. (applause)

Taxes

"We should cut taxes because it is the right thing to do.

"It is the right thing for our economy. It is the right thing for the record number of men and women who have jobs in this State today. And it is the right thing for their children.

"So let's give the most tax relief to the hard-working families of our State who deserve it most. (applause)

"I have proposed a $483 million tax cut. Three-fourths of it would go to families like these, because working families raising children need the most help.

"We should raise the personal exemption for every member of a household by $500. We should create a tax credit of $50 per child. And we should remember that these families need the money.

"The Geralds need the money—they want to put their tax savings toward Alexandria's college education. Pamela Cross needs the money; she needs it for food and clothing for her boys, and maybe a few extras like a baseball glove or karate lessons.

"We should also make tax cuts that will build our economy and build our children's economic future.

"North Carolina's already one of the best places in the country to live and do business. This year we can make it even more attractive and more competitive.

"We should repeal the intangibles tax on stocks and bonds, so George and Evelyn Schnupp can have a little more in their retirement years. We should reduce the corporate income tax, and we ought to pass it this year so we can use it right now to recruit business and jobs to North Carolina. (applause)

"Now, this is a big tax cut—nearly half a billion dollars.

"It'll require tough choices and new priorities. And it must be done with the help and involvement and participation of State employees, who care just as much as we do about giving taxpayers their money's worth.

"It won't be easy.

"But we can do it, because State government can get by with less.

"And we ought to do it, because these families and their children deserve it. (applause)

Crime

"We should continue our efforts to fight crime because it is the right thing to do.

"It is the right thing for the law-abiding people who are the backbone of our State. And it is the right thing to do for their children.

"Children can't learn in schools that aren't safe. Families can't live in neighborhoods that aren't safe. Our State won't ever be safe if more and more young people get involved in drugs and crime.

"Even in small towns like Wallace, crime is a problem. Franklin and Jo Ann Williams know that. Franklin is the treasurer at his church. Last summer, thieves broke into their house and stole the church collections. The Williams weren't home at the time, so they weren't hurt. But a lot of victims aren't that lucky.

"We need to do a lot more to help keep our communities safe—in Duplin County and all over North Carolina.

"I believe fighting crime starts with tougher sentences for violent criminals. When a dangerous criminal is locked up behind bars, every North Carolinian is safer. (applause)

"So we should pass longer sentences for violent crimes, like second-degree murder, rape, armed robbery and other felonies. I will propose increasing these sentences for those crimes by thirty percent.

"We need to build more prisons, and find faster and cheaper ways to do it. My budget will propose more than 2,000 more prison beds over the next two years, part of a plan to build more than 4,000 new beds in four years.

"We need to put more prisoners to work in North Carolina.

"We need to repeal the prison cap.

"We should pass a victims rights amendment to our State Constitution if because criminals have rights, victims of crime should have rights in North Carolina, and I urge you to pass that.

"We should pass a law requiring registration of sex offenders in North Carolina and notifying communities where they live. Families have a right to know when dangerous sex offenders move in right next door or down the street.

"We need to make all our communities safer, and public housing communities need special efforts. They need more police officers and tougher laws to evict those who put their neighbors in danger.

"Jessie Copeland knows how important it is to get guns and drugs and dangerous people out of public housing.

"She has helped hundreds of young people stay out of crime, and more of us need to get involved in that. All of us—not just government—need to do more to prevent crime and keep a better eye on our children.

"That's what the SOS program is all about. That's what a lot of these people are about. They've been volunteering in their schools and in their churches. They've worked as Big Buddies and Big Sisters and mentors to troubled youth. This year, I've started volunteering in a Wake County SOS program, working with a young man here in Raleigh.

"I'm not proposing more tax dollars for this. But I am saying that we need more people and more volunteer time devoted to our children.

Children

"Fighting crime will build a safer North Carolina. Cutting taxes will build a stronger economy and stronger families. We can do and should do more to build our future here in North Carolina.

"We have to build up our children so they will be healthy and smart and productive and law-abiding citizens in the twenty-first century.

"That means we have to make fundamental changes in our public schools so North Carolina's graduates will compete and succeed in the modern economy.

"We need to do five things to make our schools better. Some will take legislation, and some of them can be done by the State Board of Education and the Department of Public Instruction. All will take hard work in every single school in this State.

"First, we must restore discipline and make our schools safe places to learn and teach. (applause) And I want to do that, too.

"That means more support for principals and teachers to keep schools safe. More school resource officers on campuses. It means zero tolerance for guns, drugs and weapons. And zero tolerance for students who put others in danger in our schools. We're going to stop it in North Carolina!!! (applause)

"We should automatically expel those students—for up to a full year. But don't put them on the streets. Put them in alternative schools or even in education boot camps (applause) where they learn to read and write and do math—and do what they're told.

"Second, we must give teachers the tools they need to do their jobs. Next to parents, teachers are the most important influence on children.

"Teachers need better pay. They need better training. They need more time for planning. And they need more voice in how schools are run. Folks, and I want it to be (inaudible) if we want good schools in North Carolina, we've got to have good teachers. (applause)

"Third, we must go back to basics—emphasizing reading, writing and math.

"It's most important to do this in the early years, and smaller class size can help us do it.

"Burke County has shown what can happen to test scores when class size is cut dramatically. And we can do that all across North Carolina.

"Last year you in the Legislature cut class size in kindergarten down to twenty-three students. This year we should do the same in the first grade, and we should give schools the flexibility, local flexibility, to cut class size even more dramatically.

"If we let them, local schools can have one teacher for every seventeen children in kindergarten through third grade. And folks, then we'll really see progress in North Carolina's schools. (applause) Let's do that this year.

"Fourth, we must set higher standards for what our students should know and be able to do, so they graduate with the skills they need to be good workers and to be good citizens.

"Fifth, we must improve job training—especially for the many young people who go straight from school to work. Schools and businesses must join together in new partnerships to help us do that.

"To make these changes in our schools, we need more support for principals and teachers. We need more involvement by parents. And my budget will propose shifting millions of dollars from administration to local schools, because we need to spend less money in bureaucracy and more in the classrooms of North Carolina. (applause)

"We must build a better education system, and we must help build stronger families.

"That's why we need to scrap the present welfare system, and replace it with a system that works. A system that puts people to work; requires personal responsibility; and protects children from poverty.

"We must teach children and teenagers what it takes to be a good parent and why they ought to wait until they're ready to take on those responsibilities.

"We must go after deadbeat dads and moms. I ask you to pass a tough child support enforcement law.

"We owe it to single mothers to see that fathers meet their obligations. And I want us to do whatever it takes. We'll take away their driver's licenses, their hunting and fishing licenses, their professional and business licenses. We'll track them down in ways they never dreamed of. Let's put their faces on wanted posters. We are going to see that parents support their children in North Carolina. (applause)

"Building stronger families is critically important. But there is more that we can do.

"We can do more for children in those vital early years before they start to school.

"When I gave my inaugural speech two years ago, I said that if we want to change North Carolina we have to start earlier.

"We're doing that now. We're doing it because of 'Smart Start,' and we need to do more of it.

"The Bartolos can tell you what 'Smart Start' is doing. They were worried about Nicky because at age two, almost three, he wouldn't talk or play or respond the way other children do.

"Three months ago, they found out about a 'Smart Start' program in Fayetteville that helps children like theirs.

"The other day, I got a letter from Sgt. Bartolo. He said in it that Nicky has 'really blossomed.' It was a wonderful letter. And he ended his letter with this:

> I see Nicholas developing more and more every day. The 'Smart Start' program at Dorothy Spainhour is responsible for these developments. Nicholas is now going to have a chance to develop like other children his age. I am deeply indebted to Nicholas' teachers and the 'Smart Start' program, which has allowed the funding for this to occur. Where we have tried, 'Smart Start' has succeeded. Our heartfelt thanks.

"That's just one story. There are thousands more.

"Because of 'Smart Start,' people across North Carolina are working together to see that children get preventive health care and immunizations and vision screening and hearing checkups.

"Because of 'Smart Start,' people are working together to see that there's good day care for every family that needs it.

"Because of 'Smart Start,' business leaders and ministers and parents and teachers and elected officials and community leaders are working together. Doctors and dentists are giving their services to children.

"People who never talked to each other before are working together.

"Democrats and Republicans are working together.

"Even Jim Hunt and Dave Flaherty are working together—because of 'Smart Start.' (Laughter)

"Over the last twenty years, we've been on opposite sides in a lot of political battles. This year, we're on the same side—because of 'Smart Start.'

"Let me tell you what Dave told the nation's governors about 'Smart Start' last month:

> This is the kind of approach that requires a new way of thinking and a new way of working. It requires new partnerships—between public and private sectors, between community interests, between political parties. It requires us to make changes in how we do things, so we can make changes for our children.

"That's what we have to do this year; make changes in how we do things, so we can make changes for our children.

"That's what 'Smart Start' is about. It's not about Raleigh telling people what to do with a lot of rules and regulations. It's people deciding what to do in their communities and working together to do it.

"'Smart Start' is helping children grow up healthy and able to learn. It's making schools better, making our State safer and making the economy stronger. It's building our future.

"That's why I'm going to ask this Legislature to keep 'Smart Start' working in the thirty-two counties where it's working today.

"And that's why I'm going to ask you to expand it to twenty-four more counties over the next two years. (applause)

"As Dave Flaherty said, 'Smart Start' is a new way of doing things. And we need new ways of doing things.

"New ways of building our economy and helping working people.

"New ways of protecting against crime.

"New ways of educating children and giving them a good start in life.

"New ways of government working together with the private sector, with the nonprofit sector, with communities and with people.

"We need a new approach for a new century.

"This is a time of great change. You can look around this Chamber and see that. (applause)

"The people of North Carolina certainly aren't afraid of change. Now they want to know if we can change.

"They want to know if we can put aside partisanship and politics.

"They want to know if we can work together to build a better State and a better future for our children.

"They're doing it. They're working together across North Carolina. And we can do it, too.

"Let's resolve to do it this year, Democrats and Republicans together.

"Let's join hands to build a better State—Democrats and Republicans together.

"Let's build a better future—Democrats and Republicans together—for these families and for all North Carolinians."

(The Members of the General Assembly respond with a standing ovation.)

March 21, 1995 (See page 223)

STATE-OF-THE-JUDICIARY
CHIEF JUSTICE BURLEY B. MITCHELL, JR.

"President Wicker, Speaker Brubaker, President Pro Tempore Basnight, Speaker Pro Tempore Russell, Senators and Representatives, my fellow Justices and Judges, ladies and gentlemen.

"I thank you for continuing this important tradition of inviting the Chief Justice to address you on the state of the judicial branch and its needs. Regardless of the words spoken, my address here today serves to symbolize both the constitutional independence of the legislative and judicial branches of our government and their practical interrelationship.

"Even though my tenure as Chief Justice is measured in weeks instead of years, I have quickly learned the magnitude of the increased responsibility I have assumed. After spending a quarter of a century as an elected district attorney, judge, or justice, I have come to the position of Chief Justice with some understanding of the importance and extent of the duties of our judges, prosecutors, and clerks of court. I quite frankly was not aware, however, of the breadth and scope of the various programs not traditionally viewed as court functions which the General Assembly has assigned to the judicial branch in recent years. Since becoming Chief Justice in January, I have had to attempt to learn quickly about all of the problems and challenges facing the judicial Branch.

DEMANDS OF THE PUBLIC

"Like each of you, I have heard clearly the outcry of our citizens against crime and their frustrations with government's seeming inability to deal with it effectively. People are afraid for themselves and their families, and they have a right to be. Victims justifiably feel abused and ignored when they are not kept informed as to what is going on with the cases in which they are involved. Witnesses justifiably feel mistreated when they are brought to court several times, only to see cases in which they are to testify continued without any apparent consideration being given to their schedules and needs. As I assume the duties of the Office of Chief Justice, it becomes my responsibility to attempt to lead the judicial branch to begin to address these problems.

"It is crucial that the courts be responsive to the public's frustrations and fears. But it is equally important that we be honest with the public about the real limits of the power of the courts. Courts are neither the cause of nor the solution to most of society's problems. The work of our criminal courts, both in its makeup and volume, is largely controlled by the extent to which the strains of modern society have caused other institutions-such as families, churches, schools, and social agencies-to disintegrate or lose their effectiveness. Courts are the recipients of society's problems, not the cause of those problems. But it is important that those of us working in the courts be committed to helping solve those problems and that we not make things more difficult for those involuntarily caught up in the system; this we are pledged to do.

ISSUES FACING OUR COURTS

"I have heard some characterize the courts as being in a state of crisis. I do not subscribe to that characterization. Our judges and district attorneys are among the most efficient in the United States. Every set of national statistics I have seen in the last decade has indicated that our prosecutors and judges dispose of more cases per capita each year than those in almost all of the other states. Every day, in every county in our State, the business of the courts is being conducted in an orderly and fair manner for thousands of our citizens. But I am committed to directing the energies of all of us working in the courts to making improvements where they are needed.

"The crisis I believe that we do face is a crisis of confidence in the courts and other institutions of government. Sometimes, we let problems seem so large that we begin to believe they are insurmountable. We lose our resolve to come to grips with them. In such an environment, perception can become reality. If we let ourselves believe we can do nothing, nothing will be done. I do not want that to happen with the issues facing the courts. My intention is to have those of us working in the courts focus on those things that are within our control and make sure that we are putting the resources available to us to good use.

"We must plan ahead to ensure that our courts change to meet the future needs of North Carolina. There are a number of important efforts underway which can point us in the right direction. They include the North Carolina Commission on the Future of Justice and the Courts, chaired by John Medlin, as well as the Courts Commission and the Criminal Justice Integrated Information Network Commission, which you have created. The fact that these groups are addressing the long-term future of the courts will allow the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts and me to work with our court officials in focusing our attention and energies on problems which must be dealt with immediately. I would like to discuss some of those needs with you.

DRUG TREATMENT COURTS

"One bill currently pending before you spans the gap between short-term and long-term issues facing our courts. You currently have pending before you a bill designated the Drug Treatment Court Act. It will create a statewide program to facilitate the establishment of local drug treatment courts to deal with addicted offenders. Many of these people can be saved by being put on deferred prosecution or on closely supervised probation which can be revoked if they do not respond to mandatory drug or alcohol treatment programs. Those who do not respond to such programs may then be imprisoned. This proposed act will allow us to save many salvageable people while preserving our very limited prison space for those who really should be there in prison.

"Alcohol and drug abuse have become so pervasive that they can now be said to be the major cause of crime in North Carolina, particularly violent crime. One-third of all felonies pending before our superior courts are drug charges. Additionally, most violent crimes involve defendants who are abusing alcohol or drugs or who are committing crimes to feed their habits. The proposed Drug Treatment Court Act represents a well thought out and very positive step in our efforts to get the problem of crime resulting from alcohol and drug abuse under control. I commend its sponsors and urge you to give it your most serious consideration.

DELAY AND BACKLOG REDUCTION

"Other problems we face also must be addressed as quickly as possible. Our courts-particularly our criminal courts-are faced with extremely heavy caseloads. Our heavy caseloads are in large part a result of double-digit growth between 1988 and 1992. Eliminating our backlogs is vital if we are to improve the performance of our courts. Backlogs by definition should be the exception, not the norm.

"The Director of the Administrative Office and I are in the process of identifying those locations where the backlog problem is most acute. We plan to work with local officials in those locations. We will supplement their existing resources by assigning emergency judges and temporary personnel to help reduce their backlogs. A Conference of District Attorneys has taken the initiative in this regard by agreeing to assist their colleagues in problem districts by temporarily assigning them senior prosecutors to expedite the handling of their capital cases and I commend the District Attorneys for their action in this regard.

"Additionally, I have exercised my authority as Chief Justice by reassigning all Resident Superior Court Judges to their home judicial districts, effective April 7, for the express purpose of determining the condition of the criminal Superior Court dockets in each county of the State. They will assess the adequacy of the number of criminal court sessions scheduled, in light of pending cases, and they will recommend changes in the amount of court scheduled, if appropriate. I am prepared to give priority to our criminal dockets for the immediate future, if the Senior Resident Judges report that the backlog warrants such emergency action.

"Large backlogs breed unnecessary delay in disposing of cases. Unnecessary delay breeds unfairness, inefficiency, increased expense, and loss of confidence in our Courts. I am optimistic that by concentrating on backlog reduction, we will produce concrete results. The public is entitled to have cases decided by our courts in a reasonable period of time. We in the courts must use the existing resources you have provided us to meet that goal. I am absolutely committed to seeing that we do so.

"I think I should mention at this point that I am aware, very aware, of the perception held by many that our courts are not in session long enough and that our judges do not work long enough hours. Several of you have shared your thoughts and those you have received from your constituents on this point with me, and I greatly appreciate your doing so. I hope you will continue to call such specific complaints to my attention, and I assure you that I will follow up on them to the extent that I have the power to do so.

"It should be remembered that, like you, our judges are independent elected officials. Just as it would be unfair to make a judgment about how hard you work based solely on the highly visible work you conduct in these Chambers when the Senate and the House are in session, it would also be wrong to make a judgment as to how hard judges and other court officials work based solely on the work they do in the courtroom during open sessions of court.

"Nevertheless, I agree with the view that many of you have expressed to me to the effect that judges should be in the courthouse during ordinary working hours from Monday through Friday. If court breaks down due to an inadequate calendaring of cases, judges should remain in the courthouse and initiate efforts to have cases ready for trials or for pleas brought before them. Failing that, they should seek to determine whether there are pending motions which they may deal with on a short notice. I have addressed these very points with many of our judges recently, in person and in writing. I believe they are committed to redoubling their efforts to ensure that the work of the courts is done and that the public perceives that it is being done in an efficient and timely fashion.

"I very much want you legislators to have an accurate understanding of what the court officials in your districts do. I know you are all terribly busy right now, but within the next few months, I plan to initiate a program whereby the judges from your districts will invite each of you to spend a day or more with them as they perform their duties. It never ceases to amaze me how much actual work our trial judges do, often under frustrating and inadequate working conditions. The purpose of this program will be to inform you as to what our judges do, but also to give them an opportunity to learn about some of the frustrations and difficulties that you as legislators face. I will encourage each of you to take advantage of this program.

CAPITAL CASES

"Like you, I have received questions and complaints every day about the seemingly endless delays at every stage of capital murder cases. As most of you know by now, much if not most of the delay in capital cases occurs during the hearings of the seemingly endless petitions and appeals taken in federal courts. Neither you nor I can do much about this problem, but I know that the Governor, the Attorney General and certain members of our congressional delegation are attempting to change this state of affairs at the federal level. You and I must leave that effort to them, however, and turn our attention to attempting to improve the State system for handling capital cases. Although I think we should make no apologies for ensuring that capital cases-above all others-are conducted at every stage in a thorough and fair manner, it is apparent to me that many of the delays arising in our State courts in these cases add nothing to the quality of justice and are unnecessary from a constitutional standpoint. We can and must do better.

"I am informed that certain proposed legislation is before you or soon will be introduced to address some of the delays in capital cases. For example, I understand that you will be called upon to consider whether to remove the requirement that the Supreme Court of North Carolina conduct what is known as "proportionality review." This is a process statutorily mandated by you in which the Supreme Court, in effect, "second-guesses" a jury which has recommended the death sentence. If we believe the death penalty is disproportionate, we are required by the statute to strike the death penalty which has been recommended by the jury and substitute a life sentence. This process has become so complex that we have developed a special computer program to assist us in our review. Removing the requirement of proportionality review would no doubt reduce the time it takes our Court to render an opinion in each capital case.

"Other proposals are currently before you which would require that motions for appropriate relief filed after conviction, sentence, and appeal in capital cases be calendared and heard in a reasonable time. Executions cannot be carried out while such motions are pending. In the past, many such motions in capital cases were not disposed of quickly, because no one had clear responsibility for seeing that they were calendared for hearing. Bills pending before you which would require rapid calendaring of those motions for hearings could reduce the average time between the entry of a defendant's sentence of death and the actual execution by as much as three years according to our statistics.

"I need to remind you at this point that all capital cases are appealed directly to the North Carolina Supreme Court. The increase in the number of those cases has placed increasing burdens upon us. In 1991, there were fifteen new appeals in capital cases filed in our Court; by 1994, the number of new capital appeals for the year had risen to forty. This represents an increase of 166 percent in the number of capital appeals filed from 1991 to 1994.

"We are committed to doing our part in making the system work. In 1994, the North Carolina Supreme Court heard oral arguments in a total of 133 cases. We have decided that we will work through ordinary breaks in 1995 so that we may increase our workload. We are currently scheduled to hear oral arguments in a total of 248 cases this year. This will increase the number of cases we hear in 1995 by 86 percent over the previous year. I think you can see that we will be strained to do our part to insure that cases reach finality in a reasonable time.

"Our plans to hear more cases on appeal this year will not have much impact on the number of pending appeals in capital cases, however, unless we are able to focus our attention on those cases. You can help us in this regard. I ask that you give serious consideration to proposals to remove the automatic right of appeal to the Supreme Court in every case in which there is a dissent in the Court of Appeals. Many of those cases do not involve issues of any real consequence and have no business before our Court. Nevertheless, they are automatically appealable to our Court, and the litigants in those cases are given the same amount of time for argument that litigants in capital cases enjoy. We can no longer enjoy the luxury of such appeals as a matter of right, and I do not believe that they add substantially to the quality of justice. If serious issues are presented in such cases, we will still be able to grant review in our discretion.

"Another proposal which would help us to speed up pending capital appeals is a proposal that first-degree murder cases resulting in sentences of life imprisonment be appealable to the Court of Appeals, with no absolute right of further appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court. Removing those appeals of right from our docket would give us time to consider and dispose of an equal number of capital cases from our pending backlog.

"Whether to adopt the proposals I have discussed is a decision left by our State Constitution to you, the members of the General Assembly. But should all of these proposals I have discussed be adopted by you, I believe we will be able to reduce the average time from the commission of a murder to the execution of a convicted defendant from the current average of more than ten years to something near the average of six years, which has been recommended by the American Bar Association.

FISCAL REQUIREMENTS

"Many of the initiatives advanced in the coming days of this legislative session will impact the courts directly. If we are to ensure that our courts do justice in a fair, timely, and efficient manner, the impact of proposed legislation must be carefully assessed. Expanding victims' rights or establishing statutory time limits for handling cases without providing the resources to implement such policies amount to unfunded mandates. Because the courts cannot control the number of cases coming to them, such unfunded mandates inevitably lead to further delay and court backlog—the very thing we all want to eliminate.

"The Director of the Administrative Office is presenting our budget requests to your appropriations committees, but I would like to make just a couple comments about our needs. Our budget request is an attempt to provide an honest assessment of the minimum we think is necessary to do the job presently defined for us by you and to provide the services the public rightly demands. I should tell you that there are those within the judicial branch who believe that we have undershot the staffing needs in certain areas.

"Specifically, the District Attorneys believe that the demands they must meet justify funding for considerably more personnel than this State has traditionally provided them; they make a rather strong argument for their position. It is for you to decide what goals they are to achieve. For example, you should ask whether this State wants to see more cases tried and fewer plea bargains. If so, you should remember that there is a substantial cost associated with even a slight increase in the percentage of cases actually tried.

"I do not believe it would be appropriate for me to answer such questions for you, as they are particularly within the province of the legislative branch under our system of government. I do remind you, however, that funding for the courts is not optional. Article IV of the State Constitution expressly provides that you are to pay for the operation of the judicial branch from State funds. So, I urge you to be aware of the costs associated with any changes in the operation of the courts you are considering adopting.

JUDICIAL SELECTION

"Since the adoption of the North Carolina Constitution of 1868, our judges have been elected to office in partisan elections. Many of us have long sought to change this system. However, the current system served us reasonably well for more than 100 years. During those years, a person who was initially appointed to a vacancy might expect to have one contested election. If the judge won that election, it was rare for the judge ever face another contested election. While, arguably, the threat of an election opponent kept our judges reasonably humble, the exceptionally small number of contested elections gave our system stability. This allowed judges to enter a career in the judiciary with some certainty that they could complete that career if they were professionally competent and temperamentally suited to the position. We have been blessed under our current system with a judiciary which has been almost totally free of any form of corruption. To the best of my knowledge, only one judge in the history of the State has ever been found to have accepted a bribe or otherwise been financially corrupt; that occurred within the last decade and should be viewed as a wake-up call for all of us.

"For a little more than a decade now, strong contested partisan judicial elections have been commonplace. Partisan judicial elections have become more and more expensive and time-consuming and now regularly put tremendous pressure on individual judges and on the court system as a whole. Current trends toward politics dominated by narrow special interests have brought our judges under increasing pressure to give advance commitments to enter rulings desirable to special interest groups. So far, I am proud to say that I believe our judges have avoided this temptation uniformly; I am sorry that I cannot promise that this will always be so.

"Further, it is now clear that partisan elections are directly interrupting the work of the courts and slowing our disposition of cases. For example, the North Carolina Supreme Court was required to cancel November and December court in 1994 after two justices were defeated and the Chief Justice announced his retirement. Such cancellations have occurred three times in the Supreme Court during the last ten years as Democrats swept Republicans from the Court and the Republicans returned the favor. The experience in the Court of Appeals has been much the same. I do not mean to criticize any individual when I say that this state of affairs has not served the courts or the public well. We simply need to change the system.

"Last fall, the North Carolina Judicial Conference-an organization comprised of all judges in the State-adopted a resolution endorsing an appointive system of judges; only two judges voted no. More recently, it has appeared that adoption of a nonpartisan election system for judges might be a more realistic goal in this session of the General Assembly. As a result, we have polled the judges of this State, asking whether they would favor a change to a nonpartisan system for the election of judges over our current partisan system. The responses indicated that 72 percent of our Superior Court Judges and 64 percent of our District Court Judges prefer a nonpartisan system of judicial elections over the current system.

"I think you may face a unique but brief opportunity to change our system for the good of the State in this Session. The most recent elections have made it clear that we are going to have a bipartisan judiciary in North Carolina. At this particular moment in history, we cannot know which party will be most benefited by any change in our system of judicial selection and retention. This state of affairs should give all concerned added incentive to ignore partisan political considerations and to adopt a system for the selection and retention of judges that will be in the best interest of all the people of North Carolina. My hope is that the result will be a system which provides stability once a qualified judge is in office and which encourages well-qualified Republicans and Democrats to seek a career in the judiciary. Such a system should give Republican and Democratic judges alike reasonable assurance that they will be retained in office if they perform well and that they will not be subject to constant partisan attacks.

"I hope that, at the very least, you will adopt bills which provide that judges running for election immediately after having been appointed will be elected to full terms of office and not just to the remainder of the term of the office to which they have been appointed; this one small change would provide some additional stability to our judiciary without making any significant change in the manner by which judges are selected or retained. But, I strongly urge you to take advantage of this unique and perhaps fleeting moment in our history by going further and adopting some form of retention system for judges that will not constantly subject them to the ebb and flow of pure partisan political tides.

CONCLUSION

"In closing, I want to say that I am proud to be a North Carolinian and very proud to serve as a member of the judiciary of this great State. When we look at the challenges facing the courts, it is tempting to blame "the system." But those who rush to this conclusion should first take stock of all that is right with our courts in North Carolina.

"Our uniform court system, created by this body in 1962 is admired of other states and nations. The Constitution of the former Soviet Union provided more individual rights than the Constitution of the United States. The laws of the Soviet Union also contained a nearly endless litany of individual rights. But today, delegations from the former Soviet Republics and other nations around the world are visiting North Carolina regularly and trying to copy our form of government under law. They all have the same question: "How do you make your laws work so that the rights guaranteed your people are carried into effect?" The answer is simple but profound; we have genuine, enforceable rights because we have an independent judiciary to enforce the rule of law. It is ironic that precisely at the time the world has come to appreciate the critical role of our independent judiciary in making our constitutional form of government come alive, our courts and other legal institutions are coming under attack here at home. Our court system is not perfect, but it is the best in the world.

"I want to express my appreciation now to each of you for the very important and stressful work you do. I particularly want you to know that I am anxious to work with all members of both parties in both chambers of this General Assembly. I intend to take a positive and nonpartisan approach in dealing with the common challenges we face, and I am confident that you will respond in kind. I look forward to working with each of you, and I thank you for your kind attention to these remarks."

REMARKS
AMBASSADOR OF TAIWAN
The Honorable Benjamin Lu

"Thank you. Thank you very much. Mr. President, distinguished Senators, ladies and gentlemen. It's my great, great honor to be here today at the Senate of Tarheel State. (Laughter, applause) Thank you. I remember some years ago when I took a procurement mission to visit your great State; I was here once some fourteen, fifteen years ago. So love to be back here. On behalf of our people of the Province of Taiwan, I would like to extend our gratitude to all of you for your support in the past, and also our people over there cherish very much the sister-state relationship with your great State. Probably you are aware the Republic China and Taiwan have made an economic success. We are number six trading partner of your country and we are number ten, number tenth market of your great State. And a two-way trade still on the increase all the time. I remember about ten years ago we had a problem of trade imbalance with your great country, but after our efforts so this imbalance situation has been corrected year after year from a imbalance of $16 billion down to only $6 billion last year. And even now we import more than we export to you. So pretty soon and this imbalance will be reversed, not, in not long, a long, a lot distant future? What we are proud of most is not our high economic success. We are proud of our success in democratization and with the leadership of our President Lee, we are now a full vibrant democracy, just as you are. (Applause)

"Our people are well represented at all levels by a representative of the town for township, by city council for the cities, by provincial assembly for the province like your State. You have a Senate and House. At the national level we have a Parliament, we have Senators. And those elected representatives are very powerful. Issues from time to time have been lightly debated in those legislatures. We are really proud of that, we learn a lot from you. Not only we are a vibrant and full democracy, we also would like to demonstrate that success to our big brother, PRC (Peoples Republic China). (Applause) We want them change their system. We want them change to a system exactly like yours and mine. We want them change their economic system into a market economy like ours. If that can be done, then the day for our national reunification is on the corner.

"We also have few campaigns we are making. Number one, we would like to join some of these international organizations such as GATT which is already succeeded by our organization known as WTO. We would like to join that because we are a big economic power in the world, so we think we belong to that kind of a club. We also want to join United Nations. We have 21 billion people on Taiwan. We enjoys prosperity, we enjoys democracy, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, so we want to be a member of United Nations. So we are having a campaign, campaigning for a place in United Nations. So we need your support. We think Taiwan, Republic China, we are bigger in terms of economic strengths, in terms of population, than almost three-fourths of all nations in the world, so we deserve a place in the United Nations. We need your support. We today again, really my great honor to be here. We very much treasure your support and good relations with your great State. We thank you, thank you very much. Anything we can do to further strengthen our relations we'll be very much willing to make our efforts.

"Thank you again, Mr. President, and distinguished Senators. Thank you." (Applause)

By Senator Basnight:

"Mr. Ambassador, at this time, I believe that the Members may have some questions, if you would entertain a few questions from our Members. Let me, if we could, just let the Chair recognize anyone who may have a question of the Ambassador at this time."

By Senator Plexico:

"Thank you. I have not had the pleasure of doing business in your country, but I did quite a lot of business in Hong Kong, and you mentioned the desire to see Mainland China, the Peoples Republic, move more toward a democracy and certainly economic freedom. With the strength of Hong Kong being very similar to that of Taiwan in its economy, do you think with Hong Kong going back into Mainland China in, is it '97 or '99, that that will have that desired effect, or at least move it in that direction?"

By the Ambassador:

"As far as we understand now, the PRC promised to keep Hong Kong status quo for fifty years after 1997. We certainly hope they will keep their promises. For their own good."

By Senator Warren:

"I have an interest in the farming interest in your country. Can you give me an idea about tobacco imports you have, and how that works in Taiwan?"

By the Ambassador:

"Well, we love your tobacco, we import a lot of your tobacco. I remember fourteen years ago I took procurement mission here and I signed a big contract and we will keep doing that. You know the-we have-a kind-tobacco business in my country still is a monopoly business conducted by tobacco and wine monopoly bureau, and this system, because we want to join GATT, so this system has to be abolished. So probably in near future the tobacco and wine monopoly bureau will no longer be in existence, but the buying of your tobacco will continue. Thank you very much."

By Lieutenant Governor Wicker:

"Mr. Ambassador and Members of the Senate and guests, it's with a great deal of pride, and it's an honor for me to give to you the flag of the great State of North Carolina. I want you to know, Mr. Ambassador, I checked, and it was made in the U.S.A. (Laughter) And we are very proud of our flag, we believe that we have the most beautiful flag. I can't pull it all the way out, Mr. President Pro Tem, but as you can see its colors of this State, and we certainly hope that you will take this back to your great country and well, it's got to go this way, and we hope that you will—"

By the Ambassador:

"Well really it's my great honor to be presented this such beautiful gift. I can assure you there is a great place in my office for this flag."

By Lieutenant Governor Wicker:

"Thank you very much." (Applause)

"Senator Soles will now escort our special guests from the Chamber, and again on behalf of the Senate, we thank you very much. Godspeed with you."

By the Ambassador:

"Thank you very much." (Applause)

ALPHABETICAL INDEX

ALPHABETICAL INDEX

Titles of the North Carolina General Statutes (see page 2066) form the basis for this alphabetical index with a cross-index to the subject matter. Local legislation is placed under the county it affects. For example, a bill allowing the City of Raleigh to levy an occupancy tax can be found under the heading Taxation (Occupancy) and also under Wake County (Raleigh), cross-indexed from Occupancy Tax to Taxation.

The identical bill number, when applicable, and the final action taken on the measure are noted following the title. When ratified, the Chapter Number of the Session Laws is reflected.

Bills included by reference or identifiable within another measure are reflected with the final action.
